Former Coleman Publisher Awarded Life Membership

Among six weekly newspaper publishers from across the Dominion who were awarded life memberships in the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association Thursday was H. T. Halliwell, editor and publisher of The Fort Macleod Gazette. The award is the highest the CWNA can confer on any of its members.

Dean of Southern Alberta weekly publishers, Mr. Halliwell started his newspaper career in London, England, before the turn of the century as a printer. After serving in the Boer War in South Africa, Mr. Halliwell returned to London, but the travel bug from the dark continent stayed with him and in 1903 Mr. Halliwell found himself headed for Canada.

During the first two years in this country he worked on the Oxbow Herald in southern Saskatchewan and in 1905 purchased a small weekly in Manor, also in southern Saskatchewan. He later purchased a weekly at Enoch, Sask., and after operating it until 1925, sold out and purchased The Coleman Journal.

In 1940 Mr. Halliwell took over the operation of The Macleod Gazette. He later sold his interest in The Journal and devoted his full time to The Gazette.

Mr. Halliwell served as president of the CWNA in 1939, and 1940 and was also president of the Alberta division of the association. While in Saskatchewan he served as president of that province's division.

Over 300,000 Canadians including police, fire, medical and other services, together with public spirited volunteers, have received Civil Defence training since 1951.

Visiting tourists and resident Albertans are making heavy use of the roadside camping and picnic spots provided along heavily travelled highways by the Alberta Government. The Alberta Travel Bureau reports that the number of visitors camping out is almost twice that of 1957, and the trend is still growing in popularity. The Bureau estimates that 30 per cent of all motorists use the camping or picnic facilities.

The Department of Highways has located 43 roadside camp-sites throughout the province. Each is equipped with a rustic type shelter, cook stove, tables and toilet facilities. Fresh water wells are provided wherever possible. Some spots have proven so popular that a second shelter has had to be built.

By the end of the season, Alberta's provincial parks will have 52 shelters, 850 picnic tables and 171 rest benches. The government will equip 21 locations this year with children's playground equipment. Many communities adjacent to overnight camping spots have supplied playground equipment to encourage use of the province's tourist facilities.

In addition to the camp spots, the province has located dozens of highway tables. These are located where possible at viewpoints or other points of interest.

Total of out of province visitors is up seven per cent this year over 1957, national park registrations indicate. Visitors last year spent $65,000,000 during their stay in the province.

Attends Supreme Sessions of the Pythian Sisters

Mrs. Steve Penney arrived home after attending the Supreme Sessions of the Pythian Sisters, held in Boston, Mass.

While at the Sessions she was Supreme Pianist. She was accompanied by her daughter Sheila.

They travelled via Winnipeg, Minneapolis, Chicago and Cleveland. While in Boston they attended a baseball game between New York Yankees and Boston, the winner, Boston, 6-2.

They also visited a Kiddie camp which is sponsored by the Knights of Pythias of Boston. The children are of every race and religion, and it is only for children whose parents are not able to take them for a holiday, and there is no charge at all.

They also attended an Episcopal Church service at Christ Church in Boston. At this church on April 18, 1775, two men signalled Paul Revere from the church belfry that the enemy were coming, which started the Revolution. They also visited other points of interest.

On their way home they travelled via New York, Pittsburg, Chicago, and Great Falls. On leaving New York they travelled through the Lincoln Tunnel which is one and a half miles in length.

The Pythian Sisters next Supreme Session will be held in Roanoke, West Virginia, at which Mrs. Penney will be Supreme Representative.
